TORTURING PAIN.

Half This Man's Sufferings Would Have Killed Many a Person, But Doan's Cured Him.

Thousands of grateful people are telling every day how Doan's Kidney Pills cured them of distressing and dangerous kidney and bladder troubles.

Yet other thousands are suffering every day from these same ills. Why? They are either very negligent or very skeptical. Neglect of kidney disorders leads to dropsy, diabetes, Bright's disease and other fatal diseases.

Sincere, honest testimony like the following should convince every skeptic.

A. C. Sprague, stock dealer, of Normal, Ill., writes: "For two whole years I was doing nothing but buying medicines to cure my kidneys. I do not think that any man ever suffered as I did and lived. The pain in my back was so bad that I could not sleep at night."

A. C. Sprague could not ride a horse and sometimes was unable even to ride in a car. My condition was critical when I sent for Doan's Kidney Pills. I used three boxes and they cured me. Now I can go anywhere and do as much as anybody. I sleep well and feel no discomfort at all."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Sprague will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

Jack Harkaway's Schooldays

By BRACEBRIDGE HEMVING

"And me, sir," said Harvey eagerly. "Oh, yes. There's plenty of room for a little shrimp in a big pot," replied the captain, with a smile.

"Where can we see you, sir?" asked Jack.

Captain Cuttle gave him his address in Little Bridge.

"When do you call?" Jack continued. "In ten days from this date. If you speak to your parents upon the matter, I will take you with their consent, but only on those terms. I would never be a party to a boy's running away from his school or his home."

"They say the sea is a hard life," remarked Harvey.

"Not harder than most others in which you have to work for a living. Suppose you are a clerk and have to sit at a desk from 9 till 6. That's hard, isn't it?"

Harvey admitted that it was.

"Your life is hard at school now, though you don't say it because you're used to it. As for the sea, it is a glorious profession. Where do you find the freedom that you enjoy at sea? Tell me that. But you do as I say, and if all is right you shall sail with me in the Fairy."

"Where to, sir?" asked Jack.

"I am bound for China this voyage. And now, if I mistake not, that is your school, so you will say good day."

The boys shook hands with Captain Cuttle, and they separated.

"Ten days only, Dick," observed Jack. "It will be sharp work to so disgust every one as to get kicked out. You must write home at once, and I'll see to it that you get it."

"Ah," he said, "I understand it now! But I did not expect you so early. Retire; you must all take your turn."

"Shall we wait outside, sir?" asked the spokeswoman.

"Do so, if you please."

The deputation retired as it had come. Mr. Crawcour, regardless of his eye, rushed into the passage, booted the front door and put the chain up. Then he sought Mr. Mole and showed him the paper.

"I feel already in the first stage of insanity. What is to be done? I have bolted the front door. Go to them, Mole. Harangue the mob. Do something or I shall die of old women on the brain."

Mr. Mole went to the front of the house and spoke to the foremost among the crowd, who increased momentarily. He told them that the advertisement was inserted without Mr. Crawcour's knowledge and that they were the victims of a hoax. The women would not believe it. They wanted the half crown they had come so far for, and when a virago advised them to break the windows they took up stones and did so. Not until all the windows were broken and not a pane of glass remained did they go away. Mr. Mole himself did not escape. They seized him and tore his coat in half. One woman tore out a handful of his hair and brandished it on high. Another seized half a whisker, while a third hit him on the nose. He managed to beat a retreat.

"Harkaway again," said Mr. Crawcour as Mr. Mole dolefully recounted his trouble. And he looked ruefully at his broken glass. "He must go, Mr. Mole."

"I hope so, sir."

"The day is over, and neither Mr. Mole nor Mr. Crawcour went to school. At 8 they had a cozy supper and in the course of conversation agreed that all would go well if Harkaway was only removed from the school."

All at once they started. There was a sound of castanets and banjos outside the window. A dozen voices struck up a music hall air and made the night echo again.

"What is it?" exclaimed the principal.

"Niggers! I should say, sir."

"Niggers! I have had undertakers and I have had old women. I cannot stand niggers."

Pressing his hand to his forehead, he rushed out of the room and made his way into the yard, where he tried to drown himself in the water-butt. Mr. Mole and Mrs. Crawcour providentially saved him and sent him to bed. His wife declared he had been drinking and that Jack Harkaway was unjustly blamed.

But Mr. Mole brought Jack in and questioned him, and Jack admitted that it was all his doing.

It was some days before the principal showed himself in the school again when he did he spoke to Jack and told him he wanted him to accompany him to his father. They drove over, and the result of the conversation was that Jack did go to sea.

Mr. Bedington called upon Captain Cuttle and was so satisfied with the gentleman that he paid a premium on the spot for Jack to sail under him in the Fairy's voyage to the China seas.

Harvey's friends granted his wish. Mrs. Crawcour was sorry to part with Jack, who was her favorite boy, and she, as well as his mother, shed tears over him. There was another, too, who felt sorry at his going away, and that was little Banty.

"Do you feel no regret at leaving your masters and companions?" asked Mr. Mole of Jack.

"A little. I shall miss you, sir."

"Ah! That is gratifying. Have I then, been so kind to you?" asked Mole with a smile.

"It isn't that. I'm used to you."

Mr. Mole thought this was a curious sort of reply, but he did not push the subject further.

"You must promise to write to me."

he hit his assailant in the eye and blackened it badly.

"The principal danced about the room saying: 'Oh, my eyes! My eyes!'"

The application of raw meat allayed the inflammation, but the blackness would not go away, and Mr. Crawcour was confined to his own apartment.

He sent for Harkaway and interrogated him, and Jack fairly admitted that he wrote the letter.

"What was your motive?" asked the principal.

"You said if I didn't behave myself I should go to sea. I want to go, and the sooner I go the better I shall be pleased; sir."

"Very well, do not exert your talents in the application of raw meat for fear that I will make such a report to your father that you shall go at once."

This conversation took place about 10 o'clock on the Friday morning which Jack had mentioned in his advertisement, and a furious ringing at the bell outside the gate took place.

"Dear me, what is that? Go to the servant and say I am not at home Harkaway. I cannot see anybody. Don't send them in now, I beg of you."

"All right, sir. Leave it to me."

He went to the front door and found about seventy old women before the house and dozens more coming up the road. Mary, the housemaid, who was at the door as Jack came up, was bewildered.

"Oh, Mary," Jack exclaimed, "Mr. Crawcour has advertised for a matron, and you are to show the women in, twenty at a time."

"Very well, sir," replied Mary.

She counted out twenty and ushered them in a troop into her master's presence. Mr. Crawcour, with his black eye and fearful visage, may be imagined, and his dismay can be guessed at, but neither the imagination nor the mind will do justice to his appearance or his feelings.

"My good women," he exclaimed, "what's this? Why are you here? Explain this mystery?"

One old woman told him of the advertisement. Again a ghastly grin overspread his countenance.

"Ah," he said, "I understand it now! But I did not expect you so early. Retire; you must all take your turn."

"Shall we wait outside, sir?" asked the spokeswoman.

"Do so, if you please."

The deputation retired as it had come. Mr. Crawcour, regardless of his eye, rushed into the passage, booted the front door and put the chain up. Then he sought Mr. Mole and showed him the paper.

"It isn't that. I'm used to you."

Mr. Mole thought this was a curious sort of reply, but he did not push the subject further.

"You must promise to write to me."

he said, "when you reach foreign parts."

"Yes, sir, but postage is expensive. You'd better give me some stamped directed envelopes," said Jack.

"I will consider it. Did I ever tell you that I had a rich relation in China? He has a tea garden, and I have always been given to understand that he means to leave it to me when he dies."

"What's the good of a tea garden in China to you, sir?"

"A great deal. It means independence and a relief from drudgery. Boys like you, Harkaway, do not make a school-master's life a bed of roses."

"I'm sure ushers don't make our lives all violets."

"If," pursued Mole, "my relation dies and leaves me the tea garden, I shall most certainly go out and have a look at my property."

"In that case we may meet, sir."

"I trust not, for any length of time," replied Mole, with a dismal smile. "My acquaintance with you here, Harkaway, has not been of a nature to induce me to wish to renew it in a foreign land. At all events you will write, will you not? And so, knowing what part of the world you are in, I will take care to avoid it."

"You'll die of boy on the brain, sir," laughed Jack.

"Well," replied Mr. Mole good naturedly, "I wish you success. May prosperity attend you, and Harkaway, you will not be offended if I offer you a little token of regard, a simple keepsake. I am not rich, but I bought this for you."

He handed him a handsome Bible with an ivory cross on the cover.

"See, I have written your name in it," Jack read, "To John Harkaway, from his sincere friend and tutor, Isaac Mole." Underneath was added, "Serve thy Creator in the days of thy youth."

"It's only a trifle, but you may do worse than read your Bible. I don't want to preach. You know what I mean and in the hour of danger put your faith in him who rules the storm and rides upon the whirlwind. That's all, my boy."

"Thank you very much, sir," replied Jack, touched at this kindness of Mr. Mole.

Mole walked away, and Harvey came up and said:

"A fellow told me that Hunston is going on board our ship."

"By Jove, that's bad! Think it's true?" replied Jack gravely.

"I believe one if not two of Dr. Begbie's boys have shipped with the old captain. If so, why not sail with them?"

"I hope it isn't so. I'd rather sail with anybody but that beastly cad Hunston."

"Never mind; you can lick him."

"I'm not afraid of him," answered Jack. "It's his underhand ways I hate."

"I say, here's Collinson coming this way," exclaimed Harvey. "Wonder what he wants?"

"The captain of the school approached the two friends."

"Oh, here you are together," he exclaimed. "I wanted to ask you to come to my study tonight. Can you?"

"With pleasure," answered Jack. "What's on?"

"Only a bit of a feed. Just a sort of parting spread. Three or four of the sixth will be there, and we can have a quiet hour or two and a song."

"A song?"

"Yes. I've got the governor's permission. It is to celebrate the event of your leaving and to show you that we upper boys think something of you."

"Thank you," replied Jack, much gratified at this proof of the estimation in which his schoolfellows held him.

"And you, Harvey?"

"I shall be delighted."

"Come round after prayers," answered Collinson, "when the boys go to bed."

The supper was nothing very grand but it went off remarkably well. There were speeches. Jack's health was proposed with musical honors and three times three. Then Jack returned thanks. He said it was the proudest moment of his life. He hoped he should always act in a way to deserve the esteem of his friends. He thanked them all

Difficult Digestion

That is dyspepsia. It makes life miserable. Its sufferer eat not because they want to, but they cannot because they must. They know they are irritable and fretful, but they cannot be otherwise. They complain of a bad taste in the mouth, a burning at the pit of the stomach, an uneasy feeling of purty fullness, headache, heartburn and what not. WEST BETHEL.

A Grand Trip.

Eugene H. Gammon, Walter E. Gammon and Elmer L. Elliott of Lynn, Mass., have been here to spend several days of their vacation and with Fred L. and Frank H. Ordway made a very pleasant four days' pleasure trip. They drove ninety-five miles without passing over the same road the second time, went through seven towns in New Hampshire and five towns in Maine, stopped two days at Greenough pond in New Hampshire and caught three trout, one weighing 3 lbs., one 5 lbs., one 3 1/2 lbs. They visited Moose Cave in Grafton Notch, also the Natural Jail in Newry, Sorew Auger Falls and the city of Berlin, N. H., where they visited the saw mills, thence through the towns of Grafton and Shelburne, N. H., and Gilead and landed at the village of West Bethel. During this trip they saw fifteen deer. The entire party agreed this to be one of the best times of the season.

The first three as named above returned last Saturday to their home in Lynn, carrying a lot of nice views taken while on their trip, and it is hoped by their friends here that they may come another year.

L. D. Grover has recently swapped horses.

A. J. Haskell lost one of his hogs. It was sick and died.

Walter Spiller of Shelburne, N. H., is here to work in the mill.

There are a few boarders at Maple Lane House, E. P. Grover proprietor.

Mrs. George Goodnow went to Portland last week and returned home Sunday.

Bertie Briggs has returned home from Albany, where he has been visiting his sister.

Mrs. C. A. Prescott of South Paris was here Sunday to attend the funeral of her aunt.

Sadie Seely, who has again been to the hospital at Lewiston for treatment, has again returned to her home.

Fred C. Wiggett and wife have moved from the Joe Mason house to the rent of Mrs. L. E. Bean, the one recently vacated by George Linton.

A. B. Davis and wife with daughter of Portland, also Mrs. V. B. McLain of Boston were here last Sunday to attend the funeral of their mother.

Died in Portland, July 14, Lois Cordelia Bean, aged 66. Mrs. Bean was a resident of West Bethel but on account of poor health has been in Portland under the care of her daughter, Mrs. A. B. Davis, for a few months. Her remains were brought here and the funeral was held at the meeting house last Sunday at 1 o'clock. Words of comfort were spoken by Rev. C. N. Gleason of Bethel. She was buried beside her husband in this village burial ground.

WEST SUMMER.

Clarence Bucknam is very sick. At the meeting of W. R. C. Saturday, four new members were added.

Mrs. Cynthia Bisbee has a new roller organ which she enjoys very much.

Albert Gilman of Winthrop is visiting his mother, Mrs. Horace Farrar, a few weeks.

Horace Farrar, our village blacksmith, on five of our hot days shod thirty-six horses.

Polly Bisbee, who has been sick for some months, has broken one bone in her arm.

E. R. McLaughlin and wife, former residents here, are visiting at George Jackson's.

There was an earthquake here at five o'clock, July 15, jarring beds, rattling stoves and dishes.

Lizzie Bonney of North Buckfield visited her grandmother, Mrs. Victoria Bonney, two days, last week.

The Kemp family were booked for here one evening, last week, but for some unknown reasons did not put in an appearance.

Some are nearly done haying while others are only well under way. The crop is thought to be much lighter than last year.

James Robinson, wife and baby from West Paris have visited her sister, Mrs. Walter M. Chandler, and family, a few days. Mr. Robinson is still feeble.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Bisbee of Roxbury Mass., have been guests of his brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Winslow Bisbee, nearly two weeks. Mr. Bisbee seems to enjoy his visit by taking hold and helping his brother along with his haying.

H. O. Tuell, aged 54, called on Mrs. Ruth Young, aged 53, at her son Frank's one day recently. They had a social chat and much enjoyed talking over the happenings of their old school days spent so many, many years ago. Youthful impressions are lasting.

C. W. Heath and wife went to Buckfield, Saturday. Mr. Heath returned, Sunday, leaving Mrs. Heath to enjoy a longer visit with her daughter, Mrs. T. H. Lunt. Mrs. Heath's sister, Mrs. Delphina Lowe of Malden, Mass., with her daughter, Mrs. Ada Morse, are staying there. It is nine years since Mrs. Morse visited her relatives here.

EAST SWEDEN.

A Busy Man.

One of the busy ones these days is Isaac Smith of the Riddon neighborhood. Since about the 10th of May, we learn, he has cut about one hundred cords of poplar and peeled it, and is now about to begin sawing it. Mr. Smith came to this town about three years ago to work for Mr. Riddon. He built a small house on the shore of Stearns pond, where he resided alone until one year ago last spring, when he moved his house over the pond up near the house owned by S. C. Riddon. This spring he has put up an addition to his house. Mr. Smith tells us that he expects when his poplar sawing job is done to have a job sawing birch for H. H. Bisbee, which will last him through the fall at least.

S. Jason Marr is working this season for W. L. Marr.

Charles Kimball works for E. W. Stone this season.

C. O. Kimball and Winfield Stevens are chugging their saw this summer.

NORWAY AND VICINITY.

Death from the Heat.
Friday noon in Auburn occurred the death of May A. Farrington from apoplexy induced by the hot spell. She was taken ill Thursday afternoon in the Dingley-Poss factory, where she was employed, became unconscious and was taken home in that condition. After several hours she regained consciousness and seemed to improve, but Friday morning she began to fail and died.

She was a native of Brunswick and 35 years of age. Her mother, Mrs. Eunice Farrington, she lived the greater portion of her life at North Waterford in a house owned by them. They lived a year or more in Norway, about three years ago in the rent over Cook's Barber shop and Miss Farrington worked in the shoe factory. They made many friends during their stay here.

Funeral services were at Auburn, Sunday at 2 p. m., Rev. Fred M. Pratt officiating. Burial was at North Waterford, Monday.

A Chapter of Accidents.
The picnic of Mount Hope Rebekah Lodge, I. O. O. F., was held last Thursday afternoon, and those who attended had a very pleasant time indeed. Capt. Crommett placed Robinhood cottages at their disposal and every facility for enjoyment was given. There were only a few who attended, some twenty-five in all, due to causes beyond their control, and that there was any picnic at all is due to the courage of the few.

Sometime Thursday morning, the boom of C. B. Cummings' Sons broke, scattering saw logs over the lower channel, and preventing the steamer from going below the bridge.

Arrangements were made to start from the bridge and at 2 and 6 o'clock some of the party went up, a barge running from the village to the bridge. The barge took a large number to the bridge for the 8 o'clock special, which owing to a break down was unable to run. The party got back by being rowed to the main land and walking home.

Elmer Abbott of Berlin, N. H., was in Norway, the past week.

Harriet Millett spent the Sabbath at Will Young's "up in town."

Mrs. John Abbott of Lynn, Mass., has been visiting Mrs. W. A. Lewis.

Winfield A. Kimball and G. Frank Barron have passed the examination without conditions for admission to Bowdoin College.

Mrs. A. Thompson came Thursday and Maude Thompson on Monday to open their cottage on Rock Island. Dr. Thompson is expected this week.

T. L. Heath was at Allen Pond, Stoneham, July 7 and 8, fishing. He had good luck on the trout securing 10 that dressed two pounds each.

Registered at the Seal's Hotel last Thursday were Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris, daughter of the late Gen. U. S. Grant; her daughter, Miss Sartoris of Washington, D. C.; Miss Lord and Miss Peterson, of Boston; Miss Jangle of Germany and E. H. Jones of Chicago. The party arrived from Poland Spring in a four-seated automobile, and after dinner at the Seal's went to Paris Hill. It was Mrs. Sartoris' first visit in Norway.

While waiting for a train Wednesday, last week, at Waterville, to take him to his home in Springfield, W. L. Scribner, one of the Maine prison inspectors, was overcome by the heat. He became temporarily deranged and wandered about the railroad yard for some time before attracting attention. He was taken to the home of a friend and given proper treatment. Mr. Scribner is a brother of Mrs. O. N. Bradbury, and frequently visits in Norway.

Explains Cause of Earthquake.
Prof. Lee of Bowdoin College, who is State geologist, said this morning that the earthquake took the form of a large oval with a long axis from Bangor to York and the center of it was undoubtedly around Waterville. The tremendous agitation, said he, passed from East to West and was between 7 and 10 seconds duration. Prof. Lee said further that the cause of it was very likely the slipping of rock on the side of a fissure at some considerable depth, probably two or three miles, as a result of a long continued strain. The heat of the past week very likely might have increased the strain upon the huge rocks that fell. Again it is not impossible that an explosion may have caused the same result. While there is no instrument at Bowdoin for registering the strength and velocity of the concussion, Prof. Lee regarded the waves as slight.

Munroe-Newton.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the parsonage of the Park street Methodist church, Lewiston, Wednesday evening, when Prof. John O. Newton, of Kents Hill, was united in marriage to Adah Louise Munroe, of Auburn.

Rev. F. C. Norcross, pastor, officiated. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a few near friends. Ernest E. Sands officiated as best man and Linda A. DeCoster as bridesmaid. The bride wore cream silk, and the groom, white muslin.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton will spend their honeymoon at Indian Rock, Rancocas Lakes. They will reside at Kents Hill. Prof. Newton is instructor in natural science and physics at the Maine Wesleyan Seminary, Kents Hill. He is a native of Andover.

Mrs. Newton graduated as nurse from the Central Maine General hospital five years ago.

PIGEON HILL.

Hon. and Mrs. M. Fernald were the guests of F. D. Trus, last week.

Newell Foster got his hand badly burned by the bursting of a rocket, the 4th.

Henry Graffman has moved one of his barns to his son Clarence's house for his use.

Ed Faunce and family of Mechanic Falls spent Sunday at the old homestead with A. F. Thayer.

The autumn is a great annoyance to summer travel for pleasure on our roads. All declare them to be a nuisance.

There are several families and parties spending this hot time at Hogan, Whitney and Tripp lakes. At Whitney lake there is a summer school for boys in Caldwell's grove with some twenty young men.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Sanborn of Boston who are spending vacation at Seal's Hotel, Norway, visited boyhood friends here, last week. Mr. Sanborn is cashier in Faneuil Hall bank and has been employed there 15 years.

GREENWOOD.

Hayrack Ride and Picnic.

Edna Curtis, teacher of the Tabbs school, and her pupils with a few friends, went on a picnic to Snow's Falls, in a hayrack drawn by a span of pretty horses. Mr. Hammond's grove, the one in which the picnic was held, is near the river, so that boat rides of about a mile in distance was among the enjoyable.

SOUTH CONWAY, N. H.

Strong Tonic.
Quite a peculiar case happened the 4th to James Meader, a young man who works at Center Conway. He went into H. H. Burbank's store and got a bottle of tonic, went to take the top off, and the bottle bursted and out of some of the tonic he got into his eyes, so that he had to call a doctor. It required a doctor to stop the blood and get the glass out of his wrist. The doctor could not get all the pieces out that night. He is still lame with it.

Charlie Atherton, who is working in Portland was at home one day lately.

Mrs. S. C. Hatch has been to Ossipee to see her brother, James French, who was very sick.

Daniel French of Limerick was lately visiting his brother William and sister, Mrs. S. C. Hatch; also Andrew Brown of East Conway, was lately in the place, visiting friends.

Mrs. Merinda Cummings spent the past week at the village with her son, Mellen Cummings. Aunt Merinda as she is usually called, will be ninety years of age next September. She is able to do light work about the house and enjoys herself much of the time sewing.

Evangelist H. L. Gale of Boston will hold prayer meetings at Raymond on Sunday, July 30.

One Dollar Saved Represents Ten Dollars Earned.

The average man does not save to exceed ten per cent. of his earnings. He must spend nine dollars in living expenses for every dollar saved. That being the case he cannot be too careful about unnecessary expenses. Very often a few cents properly invested, like buying seeds for his garden, will save several dollars' outlay later on. It is the same in buying Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It costs but a few cents, and a bottle of it in the house often saves a doctor's bill of several dollars. For sale by Noyes Drug Store, Norway, Shurtleff's, South and West Paris.

BRYANT'S POND.

Elijah Day.
Elijah Day, one of our oldest inhabitants, passed away at his old home on Wednesday of last week. He was born Sept. 3rd, 1820, and had spent nearly his whole life at the farm where he died. He married Mahala Jackson, a daughter of Benjamin Jackson of Paris, and had three children, Belinda who married Gaveston Cole of Mechanic Falls, James M., who married Julietta Cole and lives at the old homestead, and Emogene C., who married James H. Farnum and resides near Bryant's Pond. The children were all present at the funeral which was held at the house at 10 o'clock a.m., Saturday. Several grandchildren and also many neighbors and friends were present. The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Barton of Bethel, and the interment was in Lakeside cemetery at Bryant's Pond. Mrs. Day died some 15 years ago.

Fred Keith is working a few days haying for H. C. Bacon, who is not yet able to do any work.

A prolonged trembling early Saturday morning made many of our people look out for a heavy team, but the noise proved to be caused by an earthquake.

Mr. Porter of Rumford Falls, and Samuel Estes of West Paris are doing the mason work for H. A. Bacon, on the Hall cottage. Some rare specimens of quartz from Texas are being used over the fireplace.

On account of the fine hay weather and other causes only a few of the members of Franklin Grange were out last Saturday and no meeting was held. The next meeting will be on August 5th, and the ladies will have charge of the meeting.

Pond lilies are now in bloom and many young people living near Maine lakes and ponds are earning money gathering them for sale in the cities.

Shot Himself.

John Flint of North Fryeburg shot himself last Sunday afternoon at about 5 o'clock, at his home. Mr. Flint, who had been getting in hay, came to the house remaining a few minutes then passed into the shed next to the kitchen. Seeing a rifle standing there he grasped it, came in front of the building and shot himself, the bullet passing diagonally upward through the chin and into the back of the head.

Mr. Flint had been suffering for some time from a stomach trouble having been very ill in the winter and attacks coming on when he overworked. It is thought he felt an attack coming on at this time.

Mr. Flint married Elvira, daughter of Osgood Drew, and had three children, the oldest daughter being a graduate of Fryeburg Academy this year. They lived for years in Albany in the Clark neighborhood, moving to North Fryeburg in 1901. He was a successful farmer, and about 41 years old.

Funeral services were held Monday in charge of Rev. H. H. Hoyt of Hiram, and burial was at North Fryeburg.
